Circle the present perfect expressions in the text

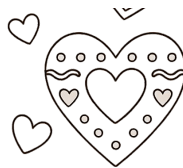

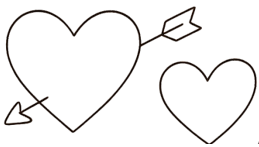

Valentine's Day has always been one of my favorite days of the year. I have loved it since I was a kid. When I was little, I got lots of cards because people sent them to me.

Now that I'm in high school, Valentine's Day has still been a special day for me. I have received Valentine's Day cards, chocolates, teddy bears, and little gifts from my friends every year. I also have enjoyed going to romantic Italian or French restaurants with my family or friends.

Lately, I have learned something important: before loving others, you must love yourself. I have understood that self-love helps you feel strong, happy, and confident. When you feel good about who you are, it's easier to show real love to other people.

It has always felt nice to give presents and chocolates back. It seems that everyone has shown love on February 14th. I think we should celebrate Valentine's Day every day — not only loving others, but also loving ourselves.

I really think it should be a national holiday. That way, we can all spend a beautiful and meaningful day with the person we love — including ourselves.

Write the words with their meanings.

1. _____ = something you give to someone.
2. _____ = not long ago.
3. _____ = feeling sure about yourself.
4. _____ = not normal, important.
5. _____ = physically or emotionally powerful.
6. _____ = something you write and give to a person

St. Valentine's story (part 1)

Underline present perfect

Two thousand years ago, the most powerful army in the world belonged to the Romans. They were so strong that they conquered almost all of Europe and parts of Asia and Africa.

But as time passed, they grew very rich and a little bit lazy. Life in the army was harsh, and many soldiers longed for the comforts of home. They wanted to get married and start families.

The emperor, whose name was Claudius II, grew worried that his army was becoming soft. So he made a law that no soldier was allowed to get married.

By that time, many Romans were Christians, and one of their leaders was a bishop called Valentine. He believed that if a man and a woman fell in love, they should be allowed to marry. So he decided to let soldiers get married in his church, even though it was now against the law. The soldiers' weddings were meant to be kept secret.

But, as you know, all secrets are hard to keep, and soon the word got out. Valentine was arrested and brought before the emperor, who demanded that he stop helping soldiers marry and instead pray to the gods of Rome. When Valentine refused, the emperor sentenced him to death.

While Valentine was in prison, the jailer's daughter used to bring him his food. She was a young woman who was unfortunately blind. She and Valentine spent long hours talking, and soon they fell in love.

One day, Valentine put his hand through the bars of his cell and touched the lids of her closed eyes. When she opened them again, she could see. It was a miracle.

Valentine's execution was set for the 14th of February. On his last night on Earth, he wrote his final message to the girl. He signed his love letter: "From your Valentine."

This took place in the year 270, and ever since, lovers have sent each other messages on February 14th with the same signature. And that's the story.
